Accreditation

The University of Colorado Denver School of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians. The University of Colorado School of Medicine designates this educational activity for a maximum of 8.5 AMA PRA Category I Credits[™]. Physicians should only claim credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

Course Overview

This course consists of a full day of didactic lectures, designed to keep the dermatologist and dermasurgeon abreast of the rapid changes occurring in the areas of internal medicine, photomedicine, service in dermatology, Mohs micrographic surgery and the Journal of the American Academy of Dermatology.

Learning Objectives

Dermatology and cutaneous surgery are increasingly complex fields of diagnostic and therapeutic techniques and procedures that require continual education over the course of a career. The Colorado Dermatologic Society sets to achieve the following objectives:

1. Appreciate the challenges facing print media in the age of electronic communication in order to better navigate the medical literature.
2. Apply the principles of service excellence to the delivery of quality health care.
3. Recognize cutaneous manifestation of internal malignancy.
4. Learn how to order appropriate tests for patients in the work up of cancer in dermatomyositis and other paraneoplastic dermatoses.
5. Apply new knowledge of challenges in Mohs micrographic surgery toward counseling patients about treatment of skin cancer.
6. Diagnose the photosensitive patient and understand the technique of photopatch testing.

At the conclusion of the conference, the participant should be able to apply this knowledge and implement the presented changes in his or her clinical practice.

Poster Sessions

Poster sessions will be available for viewing during the breaks. If you would like to submit a poster, please send the poster abstract to stephanie@goddardassociates.com by August 10, 2009. Research that has been previously presented is acceptable.
